

Who are we? Harrisonburg Public Utilities is the City's department that oversees the perpetual ownership and operations of the public water and sewer systems in Harrisonburg. The Director of Public Utilities, who works under the command of the City Manager, serves as the Chief Executive Officer for this department. The body of the department is comprised of approximately 50 staff members who provide skills in disciplines organized under the following divisions:

> Administration > Engineering > Customer Billing > Field Utilities > Pump Storage Technology > Water Treatment

The department maintains over 250 miles of pipelines and appurtenances that provide services to approximately 16,000 metered connections within a population of approximately 50,000 customers.

